Jere Bauer:

✓ 1. This draft removes the UW system from the requirements for preparation, review, and approval of strategic plans by the Department of Electronic Government, because this would give the Department oversight over the UW system. If this is done, however, it may be desirable to require the Board of Regents to prepare and submit strategic plans to the governor, DEG, and the Joint Committee on Information Policy and Technology. ✓

2. Concerning Alts. A. 2. and A. 4., this draft does not adjust position levels because the adjustments are reflected in budget determinations and are therefore effective under s. 16.505 (1) (a), stats. Likewise, the draft does not make the necessary appropriation adjustments to effect these alternatives because the necessary adjustments will be included in your revised schedule. (Δ) (ΔΔ)

3. The treatment of proposed s. 15.215 (1) by this draft, providing for service by members of the legislature on a governing board in the executive branch, may raise an issue under the separation of powers provisions of the Wisconsin Constitution [art. IV, sec. 1, and art. V, sec. 1]. While a provision of this type would not be permitted under the constitutions of some states, the Wisconsin Supreme Court has indicated that in this state the separation of powers principle will not be applied inflexibly. The test is whether there is an actual and substantial encroachment, rather than a theoretical bridging of the division of power. J.F. Ahern v. Bldg. Comm., 114 Wis.2d 69, 104 (Ct. App., 1983), as quoted in Martinez v. DILHR, 165 Wis.2d. 687, 697 (1992). Additionally, in this case, the proposed Information Technology Management Board has some responsibility to oversee a department that has a responsibility to serve legislative branch agencies [see, for example, s. 22.03 (2) (a), stats., as affected by this draft]. Therefore, it is difficult to determine how the Court would rule on this issue. (CS)

4. Section 9201 (4) of the bill transfers the balances from two consolidated DOA appropriations [s. 20.505 (1) (kL) and (kr), stats.] to a single appropriation [proposed s. 20.530 (1) (ke)]. Because under this draft there is no consolidation and the DOA appropriations are renumbered individually in tact, this draft deletes this provision.

5. Changes to the Justice Information Systems appropriations were made in LRB-1915, which was drafted by Mike Dsida. I have given him the instructions to basically delete that draft, except for the repeal of s. 20.680 (2)(^Y~~kd~~), stats. This language will appear in LRBb0357. _^

Jere Bauer:

Concerning the appropriation transfer on page 1725, line 13, this draft corrects and simplifies the language of the previous draft. However, it seems that under current law, telecommunications revenue received from state agencies can be deposited in the account under s. 20.505 (1) (kL), stats., whereas, under the draft, this revenue can only be deposited in the account under proposed s. 20.530 (1) (ke). Therefore, the existing revenue in the account under s. 20.505 (1) (kL), stats., would need to be identified and transferred to the account under proposed s. 20.530 (1) (ke).
